

Minrex Completes Serbian Team with Appointment of Exploration Manager and General Counsel

Minrex Resources Limited (“Minrex” or the “Company”, ASX: MRR) is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr Milorad Antić as Exploration Manager, Serbia, and Mr Marko Ćurić as General Counsel, Serbia, strengthening the Company’s in-country leadership as it advances drilling at the Barje Deposit within its flagship Tlamino Gold Project in southern Serbia.

Mr Milorad Antić PhD, Exploration Manager, Serbia

Milorad is a geologist with extensive exploration experience throughout Serbia, most recently as Exploration Manager at Zlatna Reka Resources, the Serbian subsidiary of ASX-listed Strickland Metals Limited. In that role he led in-country exploration, including field office management, the planning and reporting of drilling programs, the implementation of safety standards, technical data interpretation, and project and belt-scale targeting.

Of particular significance to Minrex, Milorad worked on the Tlamino Gold Project during the formative stages of its exploration earlier in his career, giving him direct, first-hand knowledge of the asset and its geological setting. His doctoral research at the University of Basel focused on the origin and tectonic evolution of the central Serbo-Macedonian Massif – the regional geological domain that hosts the Tlamino Project – pairing academic authority on the area’s geology with hands-on experience at the Project itself, a combination the Company considers it would be unlikely to find elsewhere.

He has also held progressively senior roles with established explorers operating in Serbia, including South Danube Metals (a subsidiary of Eldorado Gold Corporation) and Medgold Resources, spanning structural and geochemical interpretation, regional target generation, QAQC, and GIS and database management. Milorad holds a PhD in Earth Sciences from the University of Basel and a Diploma in Regional Geology from the University of Belgrade.

Mr Marko Ćurić, General Counsel, Serbia

Marko is the principal of the Ćurić Law Firm, a leading mining and resources legal practice in Serbia. A specialist mine development attorney, his expertise spans geological exploration and mining, permitting procedures, mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and corporate counsel. His recommendations have been adopted by legislators in the drafting of new mining laws in Serbia and Bosnia, with submissions currently before Montenegro.

Marko has advised many of the natural resource companies active in the Balkans throughout their development. He acted for Tethyan Resources from its incorporation in Serbia and the securing of its exploration licences, advised on the Tethyan–Adriatic Metals transaction, and continued to represent Adriatic Metals throughout its development across the Balkans, including its eventual acquisition by Dundee Precious Metals, on which transaction he also acted.

He brings extensive experience advising ASX-listed companies operating in the region, having assisted Middle Island Resources (formerly Konstantin Resources) and Raiden Resources with the incorporation of their Serbian subsidiaries, the securing of exploration licences and their listing on the ASX. His government relations, permitting and commercial expertise will be central to advancing the Tlamino Project along its development pathway.

Max Piirto, CEO commented:

“These appointments give Minrex one of the strongest in-country teams in the Balkans. In Milorad we have a geologist who brings senior exploration leadership from a peer ASX-listed developer, knows Tlamino first-hand from its earliest days, and whose doctoral work is grounded in the very geology that hosts the Project – a combination we simply could not have found anywhere else.

In Marko we have one of the region’s foremost mine development lawyers, who guided Adriatic Metals through its entire Balkan journey to a successful acquisition by Dundee Precious Metals, and who brings exceptional government relations, permitting and commercial expertise. With drilling underway at Barje and talent of this calibre on the ground in Serbia, Minrex is exceptionally well placed to realise the full potential of Tlamino for shareholders.”
