SCALARE PARTNERS WITH INVESTMENT INFRASTRUCTURE PLATFORM

Key highlights

- Partnership with GXE to integrate institutional-grade investment infrastructure into Scalare's ecosystem
- Enables end-to-end investment transactions within Inhouse Ventures, from onboarding through to reporting and exits
- Supports the creation of SPVs, syndicates and managed investment structures across Scalare's network
- Enhances investor experience through streamlined onboarding, reporting and portfolio visibility
- Strengthens Scalare's ability to convert ecosystem engagement into investment activity

Scalare Partners (ASX: SCP), a leading technology accelerator, is pleased to announce a strategic partnership with GXE, a leading investment infrastructure platform, to enhance the capabilities of its own Inhouse Ventures platform. While the partnership is not yet financially material, it is strategically significant as it introduces a financial administration component into Scalare's ecosystem.

GXE is an investment infrastructure layer that provides fund administration, Special Purpose Vehicles (SPVs) and end-to-end transaction infrastructure for founders, investors and fund managers. GXE's technology will be integrated into Inhouse Ventures, which has historically operated as a founder-investor matching platform. The integration enables Inhouse Ventures to expand from connection into full investment execution.

Founders will be able to streamline capital raising by aggregating investors into SPVs, reducing the complexity of managing multiple individual investors through efficient onboarding, transaction processing, and fund administration. In addition, startups, syndicates and funds that use GXE for their financial admin can access additional capital and capabilities using Scalare's ecosystem and services.

For investors, the platform enables a more seamless investment experience, including compliance, transaction execution, portfolio reporting and ongoing communications in a single interface. It also supports the creation of managed investment products and syndicates, allowing investors to allocate capital across curated portfolios of companies sourced from the Scalare ecosystem. Over time, capital can be deployed across multiple opportunities (micro funds, secondaries), with investors receiving consolidated reporting, updates and participation rights. Opportunities are centralised and available through a standard administration fee structure.

Commenting on this announcement, Scalare's CEO Carolyn Breeze said: "This partnership marks an important step in strengthening Scalare's investment platform and broader ecosystem. By integrating GXE's infrastructure, we are improving how capital flows through our network, enabling founders to raise more efficiently and investors to participate more seamlessly."

Importantly, this enhances our ability to convert ecosystem engagement into investment activity, supporting long-term value creation for shareholders."

Commenting on the partnership, GXE CEO and founder Ed Hooper said: “We're excited to be working with Scalare Partners, who operate a broad and highly connected range of services across the startup ecosystem. By building a common investment infrastructure across their ecosystem, we're creating a more seamless experience for founders raising capital and investors allocating into high-quality opportunities, while also laying the foundation for a wide range of investment products, from syndicates and managed portfolios to secondary opportunities.”

This announcement was authorised for release by the Board of Scalare Partners.
