Management Commentary

SenSen focused on Smart Cities in FY2025, a market in which the company has proven product-market fit and differentiation, and a growing customer base. This has delivered strong financial performance and a turnaround from the prior year.

Revenue growth of 26.5% was fuelled by significant customer wins, including Agence de mobilité durable de Montréal, the City of Calgary and the Toronto Parking Authority.

The company also expanded key customer accounts such as Brisbane City Council and the National Heavy Vehicle Regulator in Australia. The successful completion of a large-scale rollout of our rapidly deployable, scalable AI kerb enforcement solution for Brisbane City Council—delivered within just one quarter of receiving the order—demonstrates the accelerated sales momentum and swift delivery capability of this breakthrough product.

The company added 12 smart city customers in the FY25 to its rapidly growing, global customer base.

Gross margin was improved through operational scale and supplier efficiencies, while maintaining leading-edge product capabilities and a reliable supply chain.

The company is entering FY26 with strong momentum, solid recurring revenue, products solving real market needs, and a business built to scale. SenSen's upgraded cloud AI platform, SenDISA, now integrates GenAI tools including LLMs, vision-language models, and AI agents, accelerating sales cycles and expanding our Smart Cities offering with advanced capabilities to help them monitor and enforce curb regulations at scale.

Strong net cash position

Significant progress has been made in reducing debt levels, with a net cash position of $0.7m at year end, an improvement of 197% over FY24 (net debt position $0.7m).

Net Debt $000	FY25	FY24	Movement $	Movement %
